

Why is Pb a problem in DC drinking water?

In 2001, the Washington Aqueduct changed disinfection methods to comply with the new “disinfection byproducts” rule which requires cutting the concentration of chloroform to <0.08 ppb.